Defendants.

Case No. 4:25-cv-03140-DMR

MOTION FOR TEMPORARY RESTRAINING ORDER

POINTS AND AUTHORITIES
IN SUPPORT OF EX PARTE
MOTION FOR TEMPORARY RESTRAINING ORDER AND MOTION FOR PRELIMINARY
INJUNCTION: HEARING REQUESTED

Request for Declaratory and Injunctive Relief

NOTICE OF MOTION

Pursuant to Rule 65(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and Rule 65-1 of the Local rules of this Court, Plaintiff hereby moves this Court for an order enjoining Defendants Kristi Noem, in her official capacity as the Secretary of the U.S. Department of Homeland Security (“DHS”), Todd M. Lyons, in his official capacity as the Acting Director of Immigration and Customs Enforcement (“ICE”), Moises Becerra in his official capacity at the Acting Field Office Director of the San Francisco ICE Office of Detention and Removal, and Donald J. Trump in his official capacity as President of the United States of America, from taking any enforcement action against Plaintiff arising directly or indirectly the unlawful termination of their Student and Exchange Visitor Information Systems (“SEVIS”) records or the potential unlawful revocation of their F-1 visa. Such enforcement action includes: detaining Plaintiff pending these proceedings, transferring Plaintiff away from the jurisdiction of this District pending these proceedings, and removing Plaintiff from the United States pending these proceedings.

Plaintiff, through this temporary restraining order, therefore seeks an order preventing Defendants from arresting and incarcerating them in an immigration jail pending the resolution of these proceedings. Plaintiff further seeks that Defendants revocation of Plaintiff's SEVIS account be declared without legal force for the duration of this litigation, which is necessary to maintain the status quo in their case whereby they continue to be in valid F-1 nonimmigrant status, continue to work pursuant to their valid F-1 status (and their underlying valid Form I-20, Certificate of Eligibility for Nonimmigrant Student Status), and may seek the concomitant benefits of that valid status, such as the legal eligibility to change status to another nonimmigrant visa status, while this litigation remains pending.

Plaintiff also seeks an order requiring parties to redact or file any information identifying Plaintiff under seal, and an order limiting the sharing by government counsel of any information about Plaintiff's identity or related personal information beyond what is reasonably necessary for the litigation (including to comply with Court orders) and to prohibit use of the information for any purpose outside of the litigation.

The reasons in support of this Motion are set forth in the accompanying Memorandum of 1 Points and Authorities. This Motion is based on the Complaint for Declaratory and Injunctive 2 Relief Under the Administrative Procedure Act and the Declaratory Judgment Act, as well as the 3 Declaration of Johnny Sinodis. As set forth in the Points and Authorities in support of this 4 Motion, Plaintiff raises that they warrant a temporary restraining order due to their weighty 5 liberty interests under the Due Process Clause of the Fifth Amendment in remedying the 6 unlawful termination of their SEVIS statuses, to preserve their status quo ability to pursue their 7 post-graduate employment, and to prevent against any further enforcement action by the 8 government stemming from this unlawful SEVIS termination.

9 WHEREFORE, Plaintiff prays that this Court grant their request for a temporary 10 restraining order enjoining Defendants from arresting and incarcerating Plaintiff pending 11 resolution of these proceedings, transferring Plaintiff away from the jurisdiction of this District 12 pending these proceedings, and removing Plaintiff from the United States pending these 13 proceedings, as well as an order that Defendants' termination of Plaintiff's SEVIS record be 14 declared without legal force for the duration of this litigation, which is necessary to maintain the 15 status quo in their case, such that they may continue to work pursuant to their F-1 student status 16 under their STEM OPT while this litigation remains pending.

17 Plaintiff also requests that the Court issue an order requiring parties to redact or file any 18 information identifying Plaintiff under seal, and an order limiting the sharing by government 19 counsel of any information about Plaintiff's identity or related personal information beyond what 20 is reasonably necessary for the litigation (including to comply with Court orders) and to prohibit 21 use of the information for any purpose outside of the litigation.

22 The only mechanism to ensure that Plaintiff is not unlawfully detained, transferred, or 23 removed in violation of their due process rights, or subject to further irreparable harm resulting 24 from the unlawful termination of their SEVIS account, is an ex-parte temporary restraining order 25 from this Court.

1 I. INTRODUCTION

2 Plaintiff John Doe, by and through undersigned counsel, hereby files this motion for a 3 temporary restraining order and preliminary injunction to prevent Defendants from taking any 4 enforcement action against Plaintiff arising directly or indirectly from the unlawful termination
 5 of their Student and Exchange Visitor Information System (“SEVIS”) record or the potential 6 unlawful revocation of their F-1 visa.¹ Such enforcement action includes detaining Plaintiff
 7 pending these proceedings, transferring Plaintiff away from the jurisdiction of this District 8 pending these proceedings, and removing Plaintiff from the United States pending these 9 proceedings.

10 Plaintiff, through this temporary restraining order, also asks that the Court enjoin
 11 Defendants from directly or indirectly enforcing, implementing, or otherwise taking any action
 12 or imposing any legal consequences as a result of the decision to terminate Plaintiff’s SEVIS 13 record, until the merits of Plaintiff’s Complaint are resolved. Plaintiff further seeks to maintain 14 the status quo whereby they may continue to work pursuant to their F-1 student status (and 15 underlying valid Form I-20, Certificate of Eligibility for Nonimmigrant Student Status), and 16 concomitant Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics (“STEM”) Optional Practice 17 Training (“OPT”), as well as change status to another nonimmigrant visa status, while this 18 litigation remains pending.

19 Plaintiff also seeks an order requiring the parties to redact or file any information 20 identifying Plaintiff under seal, and an order limiting the sharing by government counsel of any 21 information about Plaintiff’s identity or related personal information beyond what is reasonably 22 necessary for the litigation (including to comply with Court orders) and to prohibit use of the 23 information for any purpose outside of the litigation.

24 Plaintiff is an individual in lawful F-1 visa status who is maintaining their status and is 25 now employed pursuant to post-graduate STEM OPT employment authorization. They are one of 26 hundreds, if not more, F-1 students nationwide whose SEVIS records have been abruptly and 27

28 ¹ To date, Plaintiff has not received notification that their visa has been revoked and has no way to verify whether or not DOS has revoked their visa without DOS informing them.

1 unlawfully terminated by the U.S. Department of Homeland Security (“DHS”), U.S. Immigration
 2 and Customs Enforcement (“ICE”), since approximately March 28, 2025, in an apparent attempt 3 to jeopardize their lawful immigration status, with no lawful or valid basis.

4 There are two distinct but related problems with ICE’s termination of Plaintiff’s SEVIS 5 record. First, the grounds cited by ICE in the SEVIS termination do not provide legal authority to 6 terminate Plaintiff’s SEVIS record, and neither do the underlying facts referred to by ICE, as 7 they do not amount to any violation of Plaintiff’s lawful status. Second, ICE appears to be taking 8 the position that the termination of an individual’s SEVIS record effectively ends their F-1 visa
 9 status, which is not the case. Even when a visa is revoked—and it is not clear that Plaintiff’s visa 10 was in fact revoked—ICE is not authorized to terminate Plaintiff’s F-1 student status, as 11 explained below. Here, Plaintiff has been in full compliance with the terms of their F-1 status 12 and has not engaged in any conduct that would warrant termination of their status.

13 Rather, ICE’s policy of unlawfully terminating SEVIS records—whether in conjunction 14 with F-1 visa revocations or not—appears to be designed to coerce students, including Plaintiff, 15 into abandoning their studies or post-graduate employment and choosing to voluntarily leave the 16 country, despite not having violated their status. For example, on March 5, 2025, DOS informed 17 a graduate student at Columbia University, Ranjani Srinivasan, that her F-1 student visa had been 18 cancelled, with her SEVIS subsequently terminated.² On March 14, 2025, Secretary of 19 Homeland Security Kristi Noem issued a post on X, accompanied by a video of Ranjani 20 Srinivasan: “I’m glad to see one of the Columbia University terrorist sympathizers use the CBP 21 Home app to self deport.”³ On information and belief, several students have received an email in 22 includes the following language:

23 Remaining in the United States without a lawful immigration status can result in 24 fines, detention, and/or deportation. It may also make you ineligible for a future 25 U.S. visa. Please note that deportation can take place at a time that does not allow

3 Given the gravity of this situation, individuals whose visa was revoked may wish 4 to demonstrate their intent to depart the United States using the CBP Home App

6 Other students who have had their F-1 visa revoked and/or SEVIS record terminated have 7 been arrested and detained, sometimes before even learning their visa had been revoked at all.
 8 On information and belief, there is a policy and practice of transferring these individuals far from 9 their homes, school, and communities, by physically moving them to detention centers in Texas
 10 and Louisiana once detained. There have been several high-profile cases of immigration arrests 11 in New York, Washington D.C., and Boston, in which the government quickly moved the 12 detainees across state lines to detention facilities in Louisiana and Texas.⁶ On information and 13 belief, there are several additional cases of students who have been arrested since their visas 14 were revoked who were initially detained near where they lived, then moved far from their 15 home, school/employer and community, to a detention facility in Texas or Louisiana the day 16 before or day of their bond hearing in immigration court.

17 If ICE believes a student is deportable for having violated their visa status, or any other 18 lawful reason, it has the authority to initiate removal proceedings and make its case in 19 immigration court. ICE cannot, however, misuse SEVIS to circumvent the law, strip students of 1 status, and drive them out of the country without process. ICE similarly cannot engage in 2 retaliatory arrests and transfers – without legal basis if the SEVIS termination was unlawful – to 3 further intimidate students into abandoning their studies and fleeing the country to avoid arrest.

4 Plaintiff meets the standard for a temporary restraining order. See Sinodis Declaration 5 (“Sinodis Decl.”) at Exh. A (Order from the Honorable Judge James A. Soto, District of Arizona, 6 granting a temporary restraining order to a similarly situated Plaintiff). They will suffer 7 immediate and irreparable harm absent an order from this Court enjoining Defendants from 8 taking further unlawful action stemming from the unlawful termination of their SEVIS record—9 including arrest and detention—during the pendency of these proceedings. Since holding federal 10 agencies accountable to constitutional demands is in the public interest, the balance of equities 11 and public interest also tip strongly in Plaintiff’s favor.

12 II. STATEMENT OF FACTS AND CASE

13 As mentioned above, Plaintiff John Doe is an individual in lawful F-1 visa status who is 14 maintaining their status by being employed pursuant to post-graduate OPT employment 15 authorization. He was set to change status from F-1 status to H-1B nonimmigrant worker status 16 on June 28, 2025, following the expiration of his OPT on June 27, 2025. On March 28, 2025, 17 Plaintiff’s SEVIS record was abruptly and unlawfully terminated by ICE without any notice or 18 basis for the termination.

19 SEVIS is a government database that tracks international students’ compliance with their 20 F-1 status. ICE, through the Student and Exchange Visitor Program (“SEVP”), uses SEVIS to 21 monitor students’ statuses.

22 On March 28, 2025, SEVP terminated Plaintiff’s SEVIS record and marked Plaintiff as 23 “Otherwise Failing to Maintain Status – Individual identified in criminal records check,” with 24 no citation to any provision of law that indicates a basis for not maintaining status, or other facts 25 that indicate a lack of status, or an actual violation of their status. Plaintiff has a single 26 misdemeanor conviction in the United States, but this conviction does not violate the terms of 27 their F-1 status or otherwise render them deportable. In fact, DHS has known about Plaintiff’s 28 conviction for months and has even granted two immigration benefits applications for them

1 subsequent to learning of the conviction.

2 A. Plaintiff John Doe

3 Plaintiff is currently employed pursuant to post-graduate STEM OPT employment 4 authorization, which is authorized through their F-1 student status, in the Northern District of 5 California. They are from a predominantly Muslim country. Plaintiff has not engaged in any 6 significant political activity.

7 Plaintiff first came to study in the United States on a student visa in 2019 and received a 8 graduate degree in 2023. Since that time, Plaintiff has worked in the United States pursuant to 9 their F-1 status and associated employment authorization. DHS previously granted Plaintiff an 10 H-1B visa, and Plaintiff intended to change status from F-1 to H-1B on June 28, 2025, following 11 the expiration of their OPT on June 27, 2025. Plaintiff is married to a U.S. citizen who has also 12 filed a visa petition for Plaintiff so that Plaintiff can obtain lawful permanent resident status.
 13 That petition remains pending at this time.

14 On March 28, 2025, Plaintiff received notice from the university where they obtained 15 their graduate degree, which oversees their post-graduate employment authorization, that their 16 SEVIS record was terminated. To date, Plaintiff has not received notification that their F-1 visa 17 has been revoked and has no way to verify whether or not DOS has revoked their visa without 18 DOS informing them.

19 The code given for Plaintiff's SEVIS termination was Immigration and Nationality Act 20 ("INA") § 237(a)(1)(C)(i) [8 U.S.C. § 1227(a)(1)(C)] – Failure to maintain status. The reason 21 listed was that Plaintiff had been identified in a criminal records check. Plaintiff was informed 22 that the school itself did not terminate their SEVIS status. Plaintiff is unaware of the factual 23 basis for the termination of their SEVIS status, as ICE did not provide that information.

24 Plaintiff's only criminal history is a minor misdemeanor conviction for which they 25 received probation. The conviction is not for a crime of violence, nor did it carry a potential 26 sentence of more than one year. 8 C.F.R. § 214.1(g) (stating that individuals who commit crimes 27 of violence for which they are sentenced to one year or more in custody are deemed to have 28 violated their student status). It does not render Plaintiff inadmissible to or deportable from the

1 United States. Importantly, long before the SEVIS termination on March 28, Plaintiff had 2 informed DHS of their criminal conviction. Subsequent to learning of Plaintiff's conviction, 3 DHS twice approved immigration benefits applications for Plaintiff because their minor criminal 4 offense did not render them ineligible for status nor removable from the United States.

5 Plaintiff is highly valued by their employer, which desires for them to continue to work 6 at the company. However, Plaintiff's ability to do so is in jeopardy due to the termination of 7 their SEVIS record and status.

8 As mentioned above, Plaintiff is married to a U.S. citizen who struggles with significant 9 mental health issues and who is the primary caretaker for a family member suffering from 10 serious illness. Were Plaintiff arrested and incarcerated in an immigration jail as a result of 11 ICE's unlawful termination of their SEVIS record, Plaintiff and their U.S. citizen spouse would 12 suffer even further excruciating mental, emotional, and financial harm. Intervention from this 13 Court is therefore required to ensure that Plaintiff does not continue to suffer irreparable harm.

14 B. Correspondence with Defendants' Counsel

15 On April 15, 2025, undersigned Counsel reached out to the U.S. Attorney's Office for 16 San Francisco by email to request the opportunity to discuss this motion, and request that the 17 government agree not to arrest Plaintiff during the pendency of the litigation regarding the 18 legality of the termination of their SEVIS account. See Sinodis Decl. On April 16, 2025, the 19 U.S. Attorney's Office responded stating that they could not agree at this time not to arrest 20 Plaintiff. Id.

21 III. LEGAL STANDARD

22 Plaintiff is entitled to a temporary restraining order where they establish that they are 23 "likely to succeed on the merits, . . . likely to suffer irreparable harm in the absence of 24 preliminary relief, that the balance of equities tips in [their] favor, and that an injunction is in the 25 public interest." Winter v. Nat. Res. Def. Council, Inc., 555 U.S. 7, 20 (2008); Stuhlbarg Int'l 26 Sales Co. v. John D. Brush & Co., 240 F.3d 832, 839 n.7 (9th Cir. 2001) (noting that preliminary 27 injunction and temporary restraining order standards are "substantially identical"). Even if 28 Plaintiff does not show a likelihood of success on the merits, the Court may still grant a

1 temporary restraining order if they raise “serious questions” as to the merits of their claims, the 2 balance of hardships tip “sharply” in their favor, and the remaining equitable factors are satisfied.
 3 Alliance for the Wild Rockies v. Cottrell, 632 F.3d 1127 (9th Cir. 2011). As set forth in more
 4 detail below, Plaintiff overwhelmingly satisfies both standards. See also Sinodis Decl. at Exh. A 5 (Order from the Honorable Judge James A. Soto, District of Arizona, granting a temporary 6 restraining order to a similarly situated plaintiff).

7 IV. ARGUMENT

8 A. Plaintiff Warrants a Temporary Restraining Order

9 A temporary restraining order should be issued if “immediate and irreparable injury, loss, 10 or irreversible damage will result” to the applicant in the absence of an order. Fed. R. Civ. P.
 11 65(b). The purpose of a temporary restraining order is to prevent irreparable harm before a 12 preliminary injunction hearing is held. See Granny Goose Foods, Inc. v. Bhd. Of Teamsters &
 13 Auto Truck Drivers Local No. 70 of Alameda City, 415 U.S. 423, 439 (1974). As explained
 14 above, Plaintiff’s SEVIS record was abruptly and unlawfully terminated by ICE in an apparent 15 attempt to jeopardize their lawful immigration status, with no lawful or valid basis. Other 16 noncitizens in identical situations have received communication from the government suggesting 17 they should immediately leave the country under threat of detention, and even possible 18 deportation to a third country. Given the government’s own statements and the actions related to 19 similarly situated international students, Plaintiff is at serious and immediate risk of further 20 unlawful enforcement action by ICE—including arrest, detention, being transferred against their 21 will out of the jurisdiction of this District, and deportation from the United States. The unlawful 22 revocation of their SEVIS record without notice or opportunity to respond, and without legal 23 basis, clearly violated Plaintiff’s due process rights and was otherwise arbitrary and capricious.
 24 Plaintiff has already suffered irreparable injury to their wellbeing, their U.S. citizen spouse’s 25 mental health, and their life as a valued highly skilled software engineer in the United States.

26 1. Plaintiff is Likely to Succeed on the Merits of Their Claims That 27 Defendants’ Actions Violated the Administrative Procedure Act 28 and Plaintiff’s Due Process Rights

Plaintiff is likely to succeed on their claim that, by abruptly revoking Plaintiff’s SEVIS

1 record without any lawful or valid basis, and without any notice or an opportunity to respond,
 2 Defendants acted arbitrarily and capriciously in violation of the Administrative Procedure Act
 3 (“APA”) and further violated Plaintiff’s procedural due process rights.

4 A nonimmigrant visa printed in a passport provides a basis for a noncitizen’s 5 admissibility into the United States but does not control their continued lawful stay in the United 6 States after they are admitted. Congress established a statutory basis for student visas under 8 7 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(15)(F)(i), requiring that a noncitizen engage in a full course of study to 8 maintain nonimmigrant status. Implementing regulations further permit F-1 nonimmigrants to 9 obtain employment authorization for OPT [optional practice training] “directly related to the 10 student’s major area of study.” 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(f)(10)(A)(3), (C). Once a holder of an F-1 visa 11 is admitted in F-1 status, a student is granted permission to remain in the United States, not for a 12 fixed period time, as is the case for other nonimmigrant visa holders, but rather for the duration 13 of status (annotated as D/S). That status endures (separate from the validity of the visa itself) as 14 long as they continue to meet the requirements established by the regulations governing their 15 visa classification at 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(f), such as maintaining a full course of study or engaging 16 in authorized post-graduate employment, and avoiding unauthorized employment.

17 In order to obtain an F-1 visa, the school at which the student will study issues a Form I-18 20 to the student confirming their attendance and enrollment in the school, with an expected 19 duration of study. Often, the Form I-20 is updated as the student’s curricular progress is updated, 20 both in substance and duration. For example, in Plaintiff’s case, their university issued an I-20 21 confirming their authorized STEM OPT post-graduate employment authorization. As long as 22 there is a valid I-20 issued to the student or post-graduate worker by the school, then the 23 individual is considered to be maintaining their lawful status. See, e.g., 8 C.F.R. § 214.1(b)(iv).

24 Before 2001, there was no centralized database to track student visa holders in the United 25 States, as it is not inherent to the legal ability of a student to maintain status. After 2001, 26 Congress created the SEVIS system to track the status of nonimmigrant visa holders admitted for 27 “duration of status.”⁷ SEVIS is a centralized database maintained by the SEVP within ICE, and it 28 ⁷ USA Patriot Act of 2001, Public Law 107-56, 115 Stat. 2001.

1 is used to manage information on nonimmigrant students and exchange visitors and to track their 2 compliance with the terms of their status. Under 8 C.F.R. § 214.3(g)(2), Designated School
 3 Officials (“DSOs”) must report through SEVIS to SEVP when a student or post-graduate 4 employee fails to maintain status. SEVIS termination is governed by SEVP policy and 5 regulations.⁸ SEVIS termination can only be based on a student’s failure to maintain status.⁹

6 DHS regulations distinguish between two separate ways a student visa holder may fail to 7 maintain status: (1) a student or post-graduate worker who “fails to maintain status;” and (2) an 8 agency-initiated “termination of status.”

9 The first category—failure to maintain status—involves circumstances where a student or 10 post-graduate worker voluntarily or inadvertently falls out of compliance with the F-1 visa 11 requirements—for example, by failing to maintain a full course of study or authorized post-12 graduate employment, engaging in unauthorized employment, or other violations of their status 13 requirements under 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(f). In addition, 8 C.F.R. §§ 214.1(e)–(g) outlines specific 14 circumstances where certain conduct by any nonimmigrant visa holder, such as engaging in 15 unauthorized employment, providing false information to DHS, or being convicted of a crime of 16 violence with a potential sentence of more than a year, “constitutes a failure to maintain status.”

17 With the respect to the crime of violence category, 8 C.F.R. § 214.1(g) sets forth that a 18 nonimmigrant’s conviction “for a crime of violence for which a sentence of more than one year 19 imprisonment may be imposed (regardless of whether such sentence is in fact imposed) 20 constitutes a failure to maintain status” Arrests that do not result in any conviction, and 21 minor infractions or misdemeanor offenses, do not meet this regulatory threshold for termination 22 based on criminal history. The Supreme Court of the United States has held that a crime of 23 violence “means ‘an offense that has as an element the use, attempted use, or threatened use of 24 physical force against the person or property of another.’” See, e.g., Borden v. United States, 593 25 U.S. 420, 427 (2021).

26
 27 ⁸ See SEVIS Termination Reasons, DHS Study in the States, (last visited Apr. 6, 2025), 28 <https://studyinthestates.dhs.gov/sevis-help-hub/student-records/completions-and-terminations/termination-reasons>.

⁹ See id.

1 The second category—termination of status by ICE—can occur only under the limited 2 circumstances set forth in 8 C.F.R. § 214.1(d), which only permits ICE to terminate status when:
 3 (1) a previously granted waiver under INA § 212(d)(3) or (4) [8 U.S.C. § 1182(d)(3) or (4)] is 4 revoked; (2) a private bill to confer lawful permanent residence is introduced in Congress; or (3) 5 ICE publishes a notification in the Federal Register identifying national security, diplomatic, or 6 public safety reasons for termination. ICE cannot otherwise unilaterally terminate nonimmigrant 7 status.¹⁰

8 Accordingly, the existence of an arrest (or even minor conviction) does not constitute a 9 basis for SEVIS termination.

10 Likewise, the revocation of a visa does not constitute failure to maintain status and 11 cannot therefore be a basis for SEVIS termination. If a visa is revoked prior to the student's 12 arrival to the United States, then a student may not enter the country and the SEVIS record is 13 terminated. However, the SEVIS record may not be terminated as a result of a visa revocation 14 after a student has already been admitted into the United States, because status is not terminated 15 by visa revocation, and the student or post-graduate worker is permitted to continue the 16 authorized course of study or employment.¹¹

17 ICE's own guidance confirms that “[v]isa revocation is not, in itself, a cause for 18 termination of the student's SEVIS record.”¹² Rather, if the visa is revoked, the student or post-19 graduate worker is permitted to pursue their course of study in school or authorized post-20 graduate employment, but upon departure, the SEVIS record is terminated and the student must 21 obtain a new visa from a consulate or embassy abroad before returning to the United States.¹³

22 While a visa revocation can be charged as a ground of deportability in removal 23 proceedings before an immigration judge, such alleged deportability can be contested in such

1 proceedings.¹⁴ The immigration judge may dismiss removal proceedings even where a visa is 2 revoked, so long as a student or post-graduate worker is able to remain in valid status.¹⁵ Only 3 when a final removal order is entered would an individual's status be lost. See 8 U.S.C. § 4 1252(a)(1) (General Orders of Removal); 8 C.F.R. § 1241.1 (Final Order of Removal).

5 A student or post-graduate worker who has not violated their F-1 status, even if their visa
 6 is revoked, cannot have a SEVIS record terminated based on INA § 237(a)(1)(C)(i) [8 U.S.C. §
 7 1227(a)(1)(C)(i)] (failure to maintain status), INA §237(a)(4)(C)(i) [8 U.S.C. § 1227(a)(4)(C)(i)]
 8 (foreign policy grounds), or any deportability ground for that matter. See 8 C.F.R. § 214.1(d) 9 (establishing the three limited circumstances under which DHS can terminate status, none of 10 which is applicable here). Moreover, there is no provision for termination of SEVIS based on 11 law enforcement contact.

12 The immigration courts have no ability to review the SEVIS termination here because the 13 process is collateral to removal.¹⁶ Only the presence or absence of lawful status can be reviewed 14 by the immigration judge. The termination of a SEVIS record therefore constitutes final agency
 15 action for purposes of APA review.¹⁷

16 Under § 705 of the APA, to prevent irreparable injury, a reviewing court "may issue all 17 necessary and appropriate process to postpone the effective date of an agency action or to 18 preserve status or rights pending conclusion of the review proceedings." Here, Defendants' 19 actions in abruptly and unlawfully terminating Plaintiff's SEVIS record violated both the APA 20 and Plaintiff's due process rights. Justice therefore requires that this Court prevent further 21 irreparable injury to Plaintiff by issuing this temporary restraining order to preserve Plaintiff's 22 status and rights pending conclusion of the review proceedings and effectively postpone the 23 agency action. 5 U.S.C. § 705.

24

25¹⁴ See 8 U.S.C. § 1227(a)(1)(B); 8 U.S.C. § 1201(i) (allowing immigration court review of visa 26 revocation).

Fang, 935 F.3d at 183.

¹⁷ See id. at 185.

1 First, pursuant to § 706(a) of the APA, final agency action can be set aside if it is 2 “arbitrary, capricious, an abuse of discretion, or otherwise not in accordance with law . . . in 3 excess of statutory jurisdiction, authority, or limitations, or short of statutory right; . . . [or] 4 without observance of procedure required by law.” 5 U.S.C. § 706(2)(A), (C)-(D).

5 As set out above, Defendants had no (and still do not have any) statutory or regulatory 6 authority to terminate Plaintiff’s SEVIS record or status, as nothing in Plaintiff’s criminal history
 7 or immigration history provides a basis for termination. This is true even if DOS has revoked
 8 Plaintiff’s F-1 visa, as the revocation of an F-1 visa is not a basis for SEVIS termination.
 9 Specifically, Plaintiff has not failed to maintain status that would warrant SEVIS termination 10 pursuant to the controlling regulations. 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(f). Plaintiff has not engaged in 11 unauthorized employment and has not provided false information to DHS. 8 C.F.R. §§ 214.1(e)– 12 (f). While Plaintiff has a minor misdemeanor conviction, they have disclosed that conviction to 13 DHS while applying for immigration benefits, and DHS repeatedly approved Plaintiff’s 14 applications. Plaintiff does not have any conviction for a crime of violence with a potential 15 sentence of more than a year and, to reiterate, has fully disclosed their sole minor misdemeanor 16 conviction on multiple occasions. 8 C.F.R. § 214.1(g).

17 Moreover, ICE cannot unilaterally terminate Plaintiff’s SEVIS record because the 18 relevant conditions for such termination do not exist: Plaintiff was not previously granted a 19 waiver under INA § 212(d)(3) or (4) that has since been revoked; a private bill to confer lawful 20 permanent residence relevant to Plaintiff has not been introduced in Congress; and ICE has not 21 otherwise published a notification in the Federal Register identifying national security, 22 diplomatic, or public safety reasons for termination. 8 C.F.R. § 214.1(d). What is more, 23 Defendants failed to articulate the facts that formed a basis for their decision to terminate 24 Plaintiff’s SEVIS status, in violation of the APA. Defendants further failed to articulate any 25 rational connection between the facts found and the decision made.

26 Accordingly, Defendants’ actions in abruptly terminating the SEVIS record of Plaintiff—27 actions which had no basis in the law—were arbitrary and capricious, an abuse of discretion, and 28 otherwise not in accordance with the law. 5 U.S.C. § 706(2)(A), (C)-(D). Defendants have 1 therefore violated the APA.

2 Second, under § 706(2) of the APA, final agency action can be set aside if it is “contrary 3 to a constitutional right, power, privilege, or immunity.” 5 U.S.C. § 706(2)(B). Procedural due 4 process requires that the government be constrained before it acts in a way that deprives 5 individuals of property interests protected under the Due Process Clause of the Fifth 6 Amendment. Fuentes v. Shevin, 407 U.S. 67, 80 (1972).

7 Once a student is lawfully admitted to the United States in F-1 status and complies with 8 the regulatory requirements of that status, the continued registration of that student (or post 9 graduate worker engaging in authorized post-graduate employment pursuant to student status) in 10 SEVIS is governed by specific and mandatory regulations, as set out above. See, supra, Section 11 IV.A.1. Because these regulations impose mandatory constraints on agency action, and because 12 SEVIS registration is necessary for a student to remain enrolled as an international student and/or 13 continue any OPT employment, Plaintiff has a constitutionally protected property interest in their 14 SEVIS registrations. See ASSE Int'l, Inc. v. Kerry, 803 F.3d 1059 (9th Cir. 2015) (recognizing 15 protected property interest in participating in exchange visitor program); Brown v. Holder, 763 16 F.3d 1141, 1148 (9th Cir. 2014) (recognizing protected property interest in nondiscretionary 17 application for naturalization).

18 Defendants terminated Plaintiff’s SEVIS record based on improper grounds, as no 19 grounds exist that permit such termination, and moreover such termination was without prior 20 notice, such that Plaintiff was provided with no opportunity to respond. Fuentes, 407 U.S. at 80
21 (“For more than a century the central meaning of procedural due process has been clear: ‘Parties 22 whose rights are to be affected are entitled to be heard; and in order that they may enjoy that 23 right they must first be notified.’”) (quoting Baldwin v. Hale, 68 U.S. 223, 233 (1864); Mathews 24 v. Eldridge, 424 U.S. 319, 333 (1976) (“The fundamental requirement of due process is the 25 opportunity to be heard ‘at a meaningful time and in a meaningful manner.’”) (quoting 26 Armstrong v. Manzo, 380 U.S. 545, 552 (1965)). The need for that opportunity to respond, and 27 the resulting prejudice from the absence of that opportunity, is clear here. Plaintiff would have a 28 valid basis on which to dispute any alleged violation of their status set forth by Defendants if

1 such a forum existed in which to do so—they could provide the evidence that their minor 2 conviction has already been presented to the government officials who have repeatedly approved 3 them for immigration benefits, and that the conviction was so minor that it is nowhere close to 4 the kind of offense that constitutes a violation of their status under the relevant existing law.
 5 Defendants' failure to provide notice to Plaintiff of the facts that formed the basis for the SEVIS
 6 termination was therefore a violation of due process under the Fifth Amendment

7 Thus, Plaintiff has established that they are likely to succeed on the merits of their claims.

8 2. Plaintiff Will Suffer Irreparable Harm Absent Injunctive Relief

9 Plaintiff will suffer irreparable harm were a temporary restraining order not issued, their 10 arrest by Defendants not prohibited, and the legal effect of the termination of their SEVIS status 11 not temporarily enjoined for the duration of this litigation. Plaintiff is currently at risk of further 12 unlawful enforcement action by Defendants—including arrest and detention—which would 13 likely lead to them being transferred to another jurisdiction far away from their U.S. citizen 14 spouse, and deportation.

15 As described above, other students and post graduate workers who have had their F-1 16 visa revoked and/or SEVIS status terminated have been arrested and detained, sometimes before 17 even learning their visa had been revoked at all. On information and belief, there is a policy and 18 practice of transferring these individuals far from their homes, school, and communities, by 19 physically moving them to detention centers in Texas and Louisiana once detained. For example, 20 there have been several high-profile cases of immigration arrests in New York, Washington 21 D.C., and Boston, in which the government quickly moved the detainees across state lines to 22 detention facilities in Louisiana and Texas.¹⁸ On information and belief, there are several

1 additional cases of students who have been arrested since their visas were revoked who were 2 initially detained near where they lived, then moved to the South the day before or day of their 3 bond hearing in immigration court.

4 Plaintiff's fear and concern of similar actions against them is not hypothetical, as Plaintiff 5 is aware that other noncitizens in the identical legal situation as Plaintiff are now starting to 6 receive communication from the government informing them directly that, if they are in the 7 United States without status, they could be detained, and even removed to a third country.¹⁹ Such 8 statements are a clear reference to the well-publicized examples of other international students 9 who have been so detained and are clearly intended to be a warning that similar actions could 10 take place against Plaintiff themselves.

11 Over the past two weeks, visa revocations and SEVIS terminations have shaken 12 campuses across the country and California.²⁰ The targeted SEVIS terminations have taken place 13 against the backdrop of numerous demands being made of universities by the federal government 14 and threats of cutting off billions of dollars in federal funding. They have created chaos as 15 schools have attempted to understand what is happening and do their best to inform and advise 16 students who are justifiably frightened about being arrested and shipped to an immigration jail 17 far away from their communities.

18 Apart from fearing the very real possibility of further unlawful enforcement action, since 19 receiving the notice of their SEVIS terminations, Plaintiff has been experiencing high levels of 20 stress and anxiety. They are unsure of what will happen to them, and they fear the possibility of 21 several consequences, including the lack of ability to continue their OPT employment connected

1 with their education, the lack of ability to change status to another visa status (such as H-1B 2 relating to employment in professional capacity) based on employment obtained after graduation 3 from school (as an individual must still be in a valid visa status to change status), detention and 4 incarceration by ICE far away from their U.S. citizen spouse who has significant health issues 5 and is the primary caretaker for their ailing family members, or ultimately deportation or 6 otherwise the obligation to leave the country without any ability to return to their employment, 7 career or community.

8 Interruption of Plaintiff's specialized post-graduate employment, after years of hard work 9 and investment of time and resources, which is the next step to a successful career based on their 10 education in the United States, would be an irreparable injury to Plaintiff and their employer.
 11 Being unable to move on to the next step in their education or career, such as a work-related visa, 12 would be an irreparable injury—because the absence of the ability to continue in valid status
 13 would mean having to depart the country. In this case, the circumstances of such departure 14 strongly indicate the absence of any ability to return. If allowed to stand, any other future visa 15 application would likely be denied under whatever justification the government currently 16 believes requires the revocation of their current status. Therefore, if Plaintiff's F-1 status is 17 allowed to be terminated, they will be prevented from changing status to their H-1B on June 28, 18 2025.

19 Thus, a temporary restraining order is necessary to prevent Plaintiff from suffering 20 irreparable harm by being subjected to further unlawful enforcement action stemming from the 21 unlawful termination of their SEVIS records.

22 3. The Balance of Equities and the Public Interest Favor Granting 23 the Temporary Restraining Order

24 The balance of equities and the public interest undoubtedly favor granting this 25 temporary restraining order.

26 First, the balance of hardships strongly favors Plaintiff. The government cannot suffer 27 harm from an injunction that prevents it from engaging in an unlawful practice. See Zepeda v.
 28 I.N.S., 753 F.2d 719, 727 (9th Cir. 1983) ("[T]he INS cannot reasonably assert that it is harmed

1 in any legally cognizable sense by being enjoined from constitutional violations.”). Plaintiff is a 2 software engineer, who is married to a U.S. citizen with significant health issues, and who has 3 maintained their student status through authorized post-graduate employment, which has been 4 the status quo for multiple years. Plaintiff’s single minor misdemeanor criminal conviction 5 occurred over a year and a half ago, and DHS has known about the conviction for a long time. In 6 fact, after Plaintiff informed DHS of their criminal conviction, DHS proceeded to twice grant 7 immigration benefits applications for Plaintiff. As such, there is no evidence of any sudden 8 change in underlying facts, or imminent harm to the government or public interest in Plaintiff 9 continuing their work for the brief period of time that the instant litigation will take to determine 10 whether they lawfully can continue to do so. Therefore, Defendants cannot allege harm arising 11 from a temporary restraining order or a preliminary injunction ordering it to comply with the 12 APA and the Constitution.

13 Further, any purported burden imposed by requiring Defendants to refrain from taking 14 further unlawful enforcement action against Plaintiff is, at most, de minimis and clearly 15 outweighed by the substantial harm Plaintiff will suffer as long as they continue to be subjected 16 to the very real possibility of further unlawful enforcement action, including arrest and 17 incarceration at an immigration jail far away from their U.S. citizen spouse. See Lopez v.
 18 Heckler, 713 F.2d 1432, 1437 (9th Cir. 1983) (“Society’s interest lies on the side of affording 19 fair procedures to all persons, even though the expenditure of governmental funds is required.”); 20 see also Hernandez v. Sessions, 872 F.3d 976, 995 (9th Cir. 2017) (“noting irreparable harms 21 imposed on anyone subject to immigration detention” including “subpar medical and psychiatric 22 care in ICE detention facilities, the economic burdens imposed on detainees and their families as 23 a result of detention[.]”).

24 Finally, a temporary restraining order is in the public interest. First and most importantly, 25 “it would not be equitable or in the public’s interest to allow [a party] . . . to violate the 26 requirements of federal law, especially when there are no adequate remedies available.” Ariz.
 27 Dream Act Coal. v. Brewer, 757 F.3d 1053, 1069 (9th Cir. 2014) (quoting Valle del Sol Inc. v.
 28 Whiting, 732 F.3d 1006, 1029 (9th Cir. 2013)). If a temporary restraining order is not entered, the

1 government would effectively be granted permission to take unlawful and unconstitutional
 2 enforcement action against Plaintiff based on their unlawful SEVIS termination. “The public 3 interest and the balance of the equities favor ‘prevent[ing] the violation of a party’s constitutional 4 rights.’” Ariz. Dream Act Coal., 757 F.3d at 1069 (quoting Melendres v. Arpaio, 695 F.3d 990, 5 1002 (9th Cir. 2012)); see also Hernandez, 872 F.3d at 996 (“The public interest benefits from 6 an injunction that ensures that individuals are not deprived of their liberty and held in 7 immigration detention. . . .”); cf. Preminger v. Principi, 422 F.3d 815, 826 (9th Cir. 2005) 8 (“Generally, public interest concerns are implicated when a constitutional right has been 9 violated, because all citizens have a stake in upholding the Constitution.”).

10 Therefore, the public interest overwhelmingly favors entering a temporary restraining 11 order and preliminary injunction.

12 4. Plaintiff Has Complied With the Requirements of Rule 65

13 Finally, as set forth supra, Plaintiff asks this Court to find that they have complied with 14 the requirements of Rule 65 for the purposes of granting a temporary restraining order. Pursuant 15 to Rule 65(b)(1), this Court may issue a temporary restraining order without written or oral 16 notice to the adverse party or its attorney only if a) specific facts in an affidavit . . . clearly show 17 that immediate and irreparable injury, loss or damage will result to the plaintiff before the 18 adverse party can be heard in opposition; and 2) the plaintiff’s attorney certifies in writing any 19 efforts made to give notice and the reasons why it should not be required.

20 Here, Plaintiff respectfully submits that sufficient notice has actually been given to 21 Defendants because undersigned Counsel emailed the U.S. Attorney’s Office regarding this 22 motion on today’s date at 8:04 a.m. See Sinodis Decl. The U.S. Attorney’s Office represents 23 Defendants in civil litigation in which they are named as defendants. On April 14, 2024, the U.S.
 24 Attorney’s Office also received copies of Plaintiff’s complaint and all other pleadings in this 25 matter. The Court should therefore find that the requirements of Rule 65(b)(1)(A) and (B) have 26 been met.

27 Rule 65(c) also states that the Court may issue a preliminary injunction or temporary 28 restraining order only if the movant gives security in an amount that the court considers proper to

1 pay the costs and damages sustained by any party found to have been wrongfully enjoined or 2 restrained. Under the particular circumstances of this case, however, Plaintiff respectfully asks 3 this Court to find that such a requirement is unnecessary, because an order requiring Defendants 4 to refrain from arresting, detaining, or transferring Plaintiff, and/or to refrain from giving 5 Defendant's unlawful actions legal effect, should not result in any conceivable financial damages 6 to Defendants.

7 V. CONCLUSION

8 For all the above reasons, this Court should find that Plaintiff warrants a temporary 9 restraining order and a preliminary injunction preserving the status quo before the SEVIS 10 termination on March 28, 2025. Plaintiff specifically asks this Court to enter the following 11 findings and orders:

- 12 1. That prohibitive injunctive relief, through the issuance of a temporary restraining 13 order, is necessary to prevent Defendants from arresting and incarcerating Plaintiff 14 pending the resolution of these proceedings. 5 U.S.C. § 705;
- 15 2. That prohibitive injunctive relief, through the issuance of a temporary restraining 16 order, is necessary to prevent Defendants from transferring Plaintiff outside the 17 jurisdiction of this District pending the resolution of these proceedings. 5 U.S.C. § 705;
- 18 3. That prohibitive injunctive relief, through the issuance of a temporary restraining order, 19 is necessary to preserve the status quo of Plaintiff's valid student status that authorizes 20 them to continue pursuing post graduate employment under their STEM OPT, which 21 includes the ability to seek the concomitant benefits of that valid status, such as the 22 legal ability to change status to another nonimmigrant status, while this litigation 23 remains pending. 5 U.S.C. § 705; § 706(2)(A), (C)-(D). This means that Plaintiff is not:
 24
 - a. Prevented from continuing their existing employment authorization under 25 STEM OPT in valid F-1 visa status, 5 U.S.C. § 705; § 706(2)(A), (C)-(D);
 - b. Prevented, based on an alleged lack of valid nonimmigrant visa status, 26 Plaintiff from changing status to an H-1B work visa, 5 U.S.C. § 705; § 27 706(2)(A), (C)-(D); and

- c. Determined to be accruing unlawful presence in the United States as a result of the SEVIS termination, 5 U.S.C. § 705; § 706(2)(A), (C)-(D).

4. That, under the circumstances of this case, it is proper to waive the requirement that Plaintiff give an amount of security in connection with the issuance of an injunctive order.

Therefore, as set forth in the attached proposed order, Plaintiff requests that the Court issue the following orders:

1. Defendants are enjoined from arresting and incarcerating Plaintiff pending the resolution of these proceedings. 5 U.S.C. § 705;

2. Defendants are enjoined from transferring Plaintiff outside the jurisdiction of this District pending the resolution of these proceedings. 5 U.S.C. § 705; and

3. Any legal effect that the unlawful termination of Plaintiff's SEVIS status or the potential unlawful revocation of their F-1 visas may have is enjoined pending final order of the Court, 5 U.S.C. § 705; § 706(2)(A), (C)-(D), including:

- a. Preventing Plaintiff from continuing their existing employment authorization under STEM OPT in valid F-1 visa status, 5 U.S.C. § 705; § 706(2)(A), (C)-(D);

b. Preventing, based on an alleged lack of valid nonimmigrant visa status, Plaintiff from changing status to an H-1B work visa, 5 U.S.C. § 705; § 706(2)(A), (C)-(D); and

c. Determining that Plaintiff is accruing unlawful presence in the United States as a result of the SEVIS termination, 5 U.S.C. § 705; § 706(2)(A), (C)-(D).

4. Accordingly, pending these proceedings, Plaintiff is permitted to continue pursuing their employment under their STEM OPT and can also change status from F-1 to an H-1b work visa.

5. Under the circumstances of this case, it is proper to waive the requirement that Plaintiff give an amount of security.

Finally, to prevent any retaliatory arrest, the Court should also issue an order requiring

1 the parties to redact or file any information identifying Plaintiff under seal, and an order limiting 2 the sharing by Defendants' counsel of any information about Plaintiff's identity or related 3 personal information beyond what is reasonably necessary for the litigation (including to comply 4 with Court orders) and to prohibit use of the information for any purpose outside of the litigation.
